

Paw Prints

CUB CREEK
SCIENCE
CAMP

JANUARY
2009

Introducing Cub Creek's newest family member, Fuji, A ring tailed Lemur.

Leaping Lemurs!! A New Addition, A New Year.

ONLY 21 weeks until camp?

With 60 degree days in December, I am so excited about camp that I start counting down. Yikes! Only twenty one weeks? WOW! I think the animals are getting excited as well! Just wait until you see the old bird barn! Just picture both nocturnal and diurnal play areas where you can watch the Kinkajou's sleeping at night and playing during the day. Even the monkey's will have homes there so you can watch them swing from their toys and feed them treats through the safety of plexiglass holes. We even have a new member of the family for the new space! Fuji the ring tailed lemur!

He is really cute and like Sarah the sloth, he loves to eat bananas right from your hand! You won't believe his tail. It is even longer than it looks in the picture!

Don't worry, the birds have a new space too! You can even move their perches around for them to design a new space and create toys to hang from the special hooks hanging in the ceiling.

I won't tell you about the other changes and friends that will share the new space until you get here, but just know, it is super cool!

Did you know...

- Lemurs have very limited vision and rely strongly on their sense of smell.
- Lemurs are only native to Madagascar or neighboring small islands
- In Squabbles with other Lemurs, the females always win. Perhaps this is why they are found on the front lines of battle.
- Males typically fight each other through scent wars! Peeeeeewwww!

Experiment with this!

Tease Your Brain!

- If EELS+MARK+BEST+WARY=Easy What does HELP+BARK+WARD+LEAD equal?
- Where on Earth do the winds always blow from the south?
- Which word is the odd one out? that hat what mat cat sat pat chat
- If a cat and a half can catch a mouse and a half in a day and a half, how many mice can 3 cats catch in 3 days?

Have you registered yet? If not, click here to check availability and register today!

www.BearRiverRanch.com/register.html